Antoine SIMONI trio (2003)

Antoine Simoni

François Chesnel

Romain Piot

Antoine Simoni, François Chesnel and Romain Piot form a trio of young musicians from the new school. They are, thanks to their free and hybrid musical training, at the crossroads of Jazz, electronics, classics and improvisation. The trio participated in the "Jazz à la Fac" ("Jazz on Campus") Festival in February 2001 and the Maizet Jazz Festival in September 2001. In their aim for plurality, they favour meeting new influences and invite, on a regular basis, other musicians, as well as DJs, dancers and rappers in order to create evolving and open artistic structures (Art Ensemble of Caen - Jazz Dudim Puzzle en novembre 2001, Explicit Lyrics, Sélection du Printemps de Bourges en 2002).

Tigran Hamasyan trio

Tigran HAMASYAN (2003, 2004)

Tigran Hamasyan in Serres

Tigran's talent as a jazz pianist was first revealed in 2000 at a Jazz Festival in Yerevan. In 2003, he won first prize at the Juan-les-Pins competition in the intrumental jazz category, so this 17-year old is well on his way to go to the top of his profession. In his first album, Introducing Tigran Hamasyan, he shows a real maturity as a jazz pianist with his very own style which owes much to the influence of predecessors such as Bill Evans and Keith Jarret, and to the sound of his home country.

Key

Christophe and Philippe Le Van

In Philippe (drums) and Christophe (bass), France has one of the most solid rhythm duo. Philippe has performed with Didier Lockwood, Michel Petrucciani, Haze Greenfield, Christophe accompanied Dee Dee Bridgewater, Michel Legrand, Ray Charles, to name but a few.
